WOMEN'S COMMITTEE MOVES FOR PERPETUAL CLEAN COMMUNITY

Favor Purchase of Automatic Street Flusher and Want Waste Receptacles

TO FEDERATE WOMEN'S CLUBS

The Women's Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, composed of Mesdames Stahlman, Mogan, Wright, Pfelehardt and Berryman met last evening in the Municipal Building. The Chamber of Commerce has no committee that is more anxious and enthusiastic to accomplish something for the welfare of the community than the Women's Committee. After a thorough discussion of the work done during Clean-up Week, it was felt that there ought to be a Follow-up Campaign of some kind; and that we are not simply working to keep Charleroi Clean for one week or at certain stated intervals, but the year around and that the Clean-up habit must be cultivated by all the people all the time. The following resolution was passed in this connection:

"Resolved: that the Women's committee recommend to the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce that the paved streets of the Borough be thoroughly washed at least once a month, and that every effort be made to secure an automatic street flusher."

This recommendation will be presented to the Board of Directors at their next meeting on Thursday of this week. The Women's Committee also wish to go on record as being in favor of waste paper receptacles being distributed throughout the town in the most needed places. The women will at once begin a campaign to secure these receptacles in or near buildings along our principal streets.

This committee will also begin at once to federate all the women's organizations of the borough. The order of procedure will be somewhat as follows:—The Committee will first get in touch with the heads of all women's organizations such as missionary societies, musical clubs, literary clubs, civic organizations and any others composed exclusively of women; and the president and secretary of each one of these organizations will be asked to meet with this committee on Monday evening, May 9th at which time plans will be made for perfecting a federation. This will enable all the women of the city to mass their efforts in behalf of any campaign which they wish to launch. After this federation has been completed, the plan will be to call all the women together in a mass meeting, at which time one or two speakers of ability and probably national reputation will be asked to address the women on some topic along civic and community lines in which they have a peculiar interest.

The Women's Committee at their meeting last evening was unanimous in their decision that the price of milk ought to be lowered and will begin immediately to get the facts in the case and to prepare recommendations.

WILLIAM PATTON DIES FROM SERIOUS INJURIES

William W. Patton of Monessen, a brother of Edwin W. Patton, of Charleroi, died in the Monongahela Memorial hospital on Monday. About a week ago Mr. Patton was seriously injured at work on the Monessen South-west Railroad, and was taken to the hospital for treatment. Funeral services will be held at his late home on Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock advanced time, interment to follow in Echoboth cemetery.

INTER-CLASS MEET BY LOCAL STUDENTS

An inter-class field meet will be held at the base ball park on Thursday next, which will be participated in by students of the high school, both boys and girls, together with those of the junior high school. There will be thirteen events on the program for boys, comprising the full complement of a regular field meet, and will be in the nature of a try-out in preparation for the County Field Meet, to be held at Washington, Pa., on May 7. While there are but six events on the program of the county meet for the girls, which is to be held in the forenoon, as a part of the above meet, there will be eight on the program next Thursday. The list of entries is a large one, and indications are that an afternoon's splendid sport will be the order of the day. The following events will take place:—100 yard dash, half mile run, shot put, 440 yard dash, javelin throw, 220 yard dash, one mile run, 220 yard hurdles, discus throw, one mile relay, high jump, pole vault, broad jump. The girls' events will be fully as interesting, and will consist of the following: high jump, 220 yard run, 50 yard dash, 440 yard run, 100 yard dash, ball throw, broad jump, quarter mile relay. The first event on the program will be called promptly at one o'clock.

This committee will hold their next meeting on Monday evening of next week.

Elks' Minstrels A Most Pleasing Performance

The first performance of the Elks' minstrels was given at the Palace theatre Monday evening, and from the delighted expressions of approval heard on every hand it was "some show." The various features of the presentation had been prepared with great care under direction of Johnny Jenkins, with a special stage setting by R. L. Barnhart, and costumes furnished by Barr of Pittsburgh.

The staff in charge of the show is made up of D. R. Hornsby, manager; J. G. Albright, assistant manager; James S. Russell, stage manager; C. S. Bateman, treasurer; R. L. Barnhart, electrician and James, master of properties.

The minstrel opening showed a stage setting of more than usual splendor, in which the interlocutor, W. R. Gaut, capably directed the presentation of the various features given by the end men, who included Paul Urban, Harry Ray, Frank Miller, Wm. Mathias, Fred Kyle and Fred Brady, as well as the soloists, Warren Kinder, Horace Nutt, T. P. Killecullen and Walter Stroud.

The chorus was made up of Messrs. Urban, Todd, Dalzell, Bailey, Sutch, Brown, Kuhn, Ludwig, Speers, Pollock, Heupel, Barger, Campbell, Dixon, W. Ludwig, Schoener, E. Miller, Phillips, Wolf, Zimmerman, Houseman, Hancock, Haase and Davis. The chorus work was excellent and their efforts were warmly applauded by the audience.

Following the first part came the Ohio, the first feature being a military travesty, "The Battle of Too Soon," with Jos. Connell as Captain and James S. Russell as the colored orderly; then followed Johnny Jenkins in dialect stories, who was more than pleasing to the audience. The Albrights, Billie and Helen, in their mystery act, a feature that was mystifying; Mrs. Mabel Watkins Clark in a trio of solos, all of them presented in a manner to receive generous applause from the audience; the entertainment ending with a "serenade" in the way of "Plantation Days at Aunt Phoebe's Old Kentucky Home." This closing number gave the cast an opportunity to display some special features, all of which were given most heartily approval on the part of the audience.

The entire presentation was given with a smoothness that showed most careful training and rehearsal, and the performers interpreted their various parts in a manner that was pleasing and which called for most generous approbation. No previous efforts of the Elks' along this line has ever exceeded the minstrel show of this year, and the local Lodge has been noted for giving some fine entertainments.

VENDORS OF JAMAICA GINGER ARE FINED

Selling Jamaica ginger as well as moonshine, in Washington county is a hazardous undertaking, and those apprehended will meet with a stiff sentence, once they appear before court.

On Monday the court remarked, when the case of Louis Spino, of the Tyersdale section, was up for disposition, that "it was about time these merchants were learning it was illegal to sell Jamaica ginger." The court imposed a fine of $50 and costs and three months in the county jail.

A similar sentence was imposed on Frank DiPaolo, of Hill station, who was selling moonshine. Tony Krajaick of the Tyersdale section, who last week was refused citizenship because he was under arrest for selling moonshine, was given a similar sentence. George and Joe Juoyatis of Coal Centre, the latter the owner of a store and the former a clerk, admitted selling Jamaica ginger and each were given the minimum sentence of $500 fine and costs and three months to the county jail.

State Authorities say Rabies Preval in This Section of the Valley

RESTRICTIONS LAST 75 DAYS

The Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Animal Industry, has declared a quarantine on dogs not only in Charleroi, but on all dogs in Carroll, Fallowfield, Allen and East Pike Run townships, Washington county; Rostraver township, Westmoreland county and Washington township, Fayette county, for a period of 75 days, beginning on Monday April 25.

The Department sets forth that rabies or hydrophobia exists among all dogs in the section above noted and that the disease has spread to such an extent that it is now a serious menace to life and property. The Department therefore orders that a strict quarantine be maintained on all dogs located or found within the corporate limits of the territory described above for a period of 75 days from April 25, and for the enforcement of this quarantine, it is ordered that each and every dog within the aforesaid limits shall be securely confined or restricted on the premises of the owner or keeper at all times, except when being led under proper restraint and except when muzzled with a well-fitting muzzle that will effectually prevent biting. Any dog found running at large in violation of the foregoing quarantine order may be killed and the owner or keeper of such dog shall be liable to prosecution.

The notice of quarantine not only specifies the townships set forth above but likewise all the cities, boroughs and towns located therein or adjoining thereto. This order therefore affects the borough of New Eagle, Monongahela, Donora, North Charleroi, Speers, Charleroi, Dunlevy and all the towns up to and including California; Monessen and Webster in Westmoreland county and Belle Vernon and Fayette City in Fayette county. The law on quarantine is very drastic and provides that it shall be unlawful, after notice has been given for the owner of any dog to permit such dog to run at large in any such quarantined locality, unless such dog shall be muzzled so as to effectually prevent biting; or to remove or permit to be removed any dog from such quarantined locality. Any dog found running at large in such quarantined area may be secured and confined or may be shot or otherwise destroyed by any person, without liability therefor. Other penalties are provided for destroying notices of quarantine or for violating the law in any way, as such action is made a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine for first offense of not more than one hundred dollars and for each subsequent fine of not more than five hundred dollars.

KRAMER'S "HONEST VIEWS."

John F. Kramer, chief of the Federal prohibition forces, has given his "honest views" on the prohibition situation as well as the problem of enforcement, and these views are rather discouraged in tone. He says that remarkable progress has been made, that the trouble is not in the prohibition law but in its enforcement; that to secure a competent force of agents "at all times" is not easy, that too many permits have been issued that liquor is successfully smuggled from Canada, Mexico and islands near Florida but after pointing out these obstacles he significantly adds that the bulk of the people must favor enforcement before substantial headway can be made, and that this desired attitude of the bulk of the people is lacking not only in New York but in other communities; "where there is not much sentiment in favor of prohibition, and where there is, is either acquiescent or dormant." Regarding this hostile or indifferent public attitude—the very greatest of the difficulties—he pointedly remarks that "you can't turn the current of history overnight."

Mr. Kramer notes that the Government has been "loath to interfere with 'home-brew' activities" and if quite frank, would doubtless have pronounced this wise, for inquisition carried into the home would raise a cry of outrage upon liberty that would imperil the prohibition law itself. Mr. Kramer treats home-brewing lightly, speaking of it as "a fad, an adventure" which will "die out from its (unsuccessful) results." Such a view is not supported by common report and observation. There is much to produce the impression that home-brewing is going on practically everywhere and with too marked a success ever to "die out." Indeed, the indications are that home-brewing is defeating prohibition to a far greater extent than smuggling. It would appear that except in large towns, people are drinking relatively little "hard liquor" because it is not easy to get and there is distrust of its quality, but they are consuming great quantities of home-made wine and in this way perhaps the consumption of alcohol is as great or greater than ever. And the average consumer seems to care very little about a law which he regards as unjust. Such is the view of the situation taken by many observers.

HARVEY'S WEEKLY.

We believe we are safe in saying that Colonel George Harvey, in his weekly publication, Harvey's Weekly, did more to expose the dangers lurking in United States membership in the League of Nations than any other single editor or publication in this country. One of the first to realize what such membership would mean to American independence, from start to finish he was the outspoken and aggressive foe of the league, internationalism, untrusting, smashing sledge-hammer blows delivered by Colonel Harvey were marvelously delivered and wonderfully effective. No wonder the very mention of Colonel Harvey's name makes the rabid Wilson partisans see red. No wonder der they were so furious over the appointment of Col. Harvey as Ambassador to Great Britain.

The last issue of Harvey's Weekly has been made, Colonel Harvey having announced on his appointment as ambassador that he would discontinue its publication. Under the caption of "Goodbye," Colonel Harvey says:

"The final test came in the campaign, and when the votes were counted the glorious news was heralded that America had declared for independence by a majority of 2,000,000. It remained only for the new President to clinch the matter already driven into the coffin of the wretched league—and this, with fidelity, to its pledge, and with characteristic finality, he did in his first message to Congress. So the war is over; the league is dead; democracy is no more."

THE FRANKLIN

Less Expense, Less Trouble, Better Service

Franklin economy is enough in itself to justify your choosing a Franklin these days. New conditions have given a new significance to the familiar Franklin figures below.

Yet economy was never the only aim—nor the only good result, of the Franklin. The principles behind it were adopted, and continued, for the superior service they gave in other ways, too.

Light weight makes the Franklin easier and safer to handle as well as more economical of gasoline; flexibility makes it more comfortable as well as easier on tires; direct air cooling frees it from the annoyance as well as from the expense of radiator troubles.

All-Electric Paper Mill. A large paper mill at Vargo, Sweden, was recently rebuilt upon the most modern lines. Formerly 20,000 tons of coal were consumed annually and the problem of maintaining this supply was a very serious one, but at the present time there is no coal whatever consumed at the plant. The boiler house contains seven "electric" boilers, each of 3,000 horsepower, and the current enters the boilers at a pressure of 10,000 volts without having to be stepped down. Each of the boilers is provided with three electrodes, and the coupling arrangements are such that steam generation can be regulated within 5 per cent. It is stated that full steam pressure can be raised in from five to ten minutes after switching on the current, and considerable economy in attendance is obtained, as compared with coal firing.

WE BELIEVE YOU WILL PREFER SIMCO SALVE

To Any You Have Ever Used

Why should anyone suffer long with a gripe, Spanish influenza, croup, cold on the lungs or in the head, now that it is known that this suffering can be relieved in a short time by the use of antiseptic applications and inhaling the fumes of a remedy sold by F. J. John and called SIMCO SALVE.

SIMCO SALVE when applied over the lungs is soothing and it immediately penetrates through the skin and at the same time gives off antiseptic germ-killing vapors which are inhaled by the patient, who at once experiences refreshing relief. SIMCO SALVE used in the SIMCO way is not to be compared with the old-fashioned internal remedies for these ailments. F. J. John is authorized to return the purchase price if SIMCO SALVE does not do all of the above and more.

Those who have spared no expense but who have been accustomed to the best treatment money could buy now prefer SIMCO SALVE for the treatment and prevention of Spanish influenza, croup and pneumonia. People who try SIMCO SALVE do so on the money back plan; if it fails F. J. John will return the purchase price. Distinctly Tailored Suits

It has been said that the reason so many imported suit models are almost over elaborate in design is because foreign designers are anxious to make up by decoration what they lack in "Finesse" of tailoring. That statement may or may not be true but it is a well known fact that American suit designing and tailoring has reached an enviable degree of perfection. Ample proof of this is to be found in this fascinating collection of Spring Sample Suits which limits popularity to no one silhouette but comprises fitted jacket and straight line styles.

ON HONOR'S FIELD

How South American Duelists Settle Difficulties.

Visitor From the United States Perceives Something Humorous in the "Desperate" Encounters.

As I was smoking on the throne of the Incas at the ancient fortress of Secahuaman, I beheld a party of two dozen distinguished-looking gentlemen in high hats approaching with a pair of weapons that resembled the cavalry sabers of Napoleon's time. It seems that Senor Escalante, editor of El Comercio, and Senor Castro, editor of El Nacional, both of Cuzco, were about to settle an editorial quarrel upon the field of honor, Harry L. Foster writes in Leslie's.

I had already noted that newspaper men in Latin-America invariably carried canes. I had at first supposed that they did it for the sake of dignity, but after reading the editorials I decided it must be for self-defense.
Every Latin-American City, no matter how small, has half a dozen sheers
published, not as commercial ventures,
but as organs for the saying of mean things about each other.

Escalante and Castro had grown so heated in a debate over a local political campaign that only blood could atone for the insults. From the duel it appeared that both of them had read Mark Twain. They were still insulting each other as they met sword in hand, but both were shaking visibly.

"Ca-n, smite him," shouted Escal-ante's seconds, as neither of them
made a move to start hostilities.

Thus encouraged, Escalante made a wild swipe with his weapon, clipping off a piece of Castro's ear.

Immediately swords were dropped,
the combatants embraced each other and the seconds led them back to town, where champagne was opened.

Dueling is by no means limited to petty editors. During the last presidential campaign in Chile, according to a well-authenticated inside story, Don Arturo Alessandri, then the candidate of the Liberty party, after a slight dissension with Don Guillermo Rivera, another politician, challenged him to a duel to take place near the famous monument of the Christ of the Andes in the Cordillera.

Disguised with false whiskers, according to the story, Alessandri and his seconds sneaked out of the capital, closely shadowed by the police. The meeting was to take place at 3 p. m.
At 3:20 Senor Rivera not having made appearance, Alessandri started back toward town. On the way he encountered Rivera, but on another road just across the ravine.

"Why didn't you come out to fight?"
demanded Alessandri, shouting across the ravine.

"How could I?" demanded Senor Rivera. "Your agents bought up all the mules so that I couldn't get there."

England's War on Rats.

No details have yet been issued of the casualties inflicted on the rats during the latest spasm of intensive warfare. It is to be hoped for our own welfare that the list of the killed will be long and that no prisoners will have been taken.

It is recorded that in a knavery in the north of England, in one single day, men and rats were killed over a quarter of a ton of the rodents. That conflictual warfare is necessary is evident when one remembers that a pair of healthy rats could have at the end of two years something like 20,000 descendants.

Historical Novels.

"Pop!"

"Yes, my son."

"What is an historical novel?"

"An historical novel, my boy, is one in which an author selects some incident in history and lies about it."

A Bad Beginning.

Master (cheerfully)—That boy of yours doesn't seem to learn anything
as he grows older.

His father—There is no one to tell at the start.

Simple Epitaphs.

While there is still indecision as to the ultimate epitaph for the "Unknown Warrior," it is interesting to remember that in Westminster abbey, where he is to be laid, are at least two monumental inscriptions of model brevity and beauty.

One is, of course, the "O Rare Ben Jonson," in Poets' corner.

The other, less known, but possibly most wistfully appealing of all, is in the cloisters, to a young girl who died in the Seventeenth century.

"To Jane Lister," it reads, "Dear Child."—London Chronicle.

Acquiring Muscles.

Flatbush—I see by this paper that there are 4,001 muscles in the body of a moth.

Bensonhurst—Well, say, I guess I'll give up eating meat as a muscle builder and go home and eat a few of my wife's furs.

Going Some.

Bacon—I see that a man has invented a watch that will go for six years without winding. What do you say to that?

Echert—Well, I should say that is going some.

Mark Twain's Old Cabin.

In a lonely spot in Nevada's desolate desert region, the old cabin of America's most interesting humorist remains the old cabin of the late Samuel Langhorne Clemens, better known as Mark Twain. It is situated in a place called Aurora, which is said to be a population of a score or so, mostly old men. It was here that Mark Twain lived and toiled and started while he evolved "Roughing It." But for the cheerful spirit of the humorist, who originally helped to put it on the map, its entire population would doubtless long since have wandered away into oblivion.

Be Tolerant.

Even in minor things some of us are intolerant of others' so-called trouble.
I heard a man the other day complain that while he was at a certain hotel there was bacon for breakfast every morning and never fish. His friend who hated fish, declared that D— was most unreasonable. "Why, there's nothing nicer than bacon," he said. Just then you feel inclined to think you are the most "put-on" person in the world, look around and you'll find many troubled ones with whom you would not change places.—Exchange.

In the Making.

"What if I get hurt?" "We'll rush you to the hospital and follow with a camera man. Then the hospital sets needn't cost a cent."—Film Fun.

TAKES CARE OF 5 CHILDREN

Mrs. Taylor's Sickness Ended
by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Roxbury, Mass.—"I suffered continually with backache and was often despondent, had dizzy spells and at my monthly periods I was almost insensible to keep around at my work. Since my last baby came two years ago my back has been worse and no position I could get in would relieve it, and doctor's medicine did not help me. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have found great relief since using it. My back is much better and I can sleep well. I keep house and have the care of five children so my work is very trying and I am very thankful I have found the Compound such a help. I recommend it to my friends and if you wish to use this letter I am very glad to help any woman suffering as I was until I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. MAUDE E. TAYLOR, 5 St. James Place, Roxbury, Mass.

Backache is one of the most common symptoms of a displacement or derangement of the female system. No woman should make the mistake of trying to overcome it by heroic endurance, but profit by Mrs. Taylor's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DIDN'T KNOW HIS BROTHER

"My brother got so bad with stomach and liver trouble that when I saw him after a year I didn't know him. He was emaciated and yellow as a pumpkin and was often in great pain. He couldn't have lived long the way he was going. Doctors and medicine gave him no relief. I picked up a little booklet on May's Wonderful Remedy, which he said described his case perfectly. The first dose of it gave him great relief and in a month he was good as ever." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. All druggists.

When Indigestion Attacks—Swallow DILL'S DIGESTERS

Relief comes the instant Dill's Digesters reach the stomach. Don't buy tablets you have to dissolve. Ask for Dill's Digesters at drug stores—25 cents.

IN SUPERB BEAUTY

Arizona's Volcanic Region Well
Called a Marvel.

No Work of Man That Has Ever Been Devised Can Approach Sight It Offers to Visitors.

Books upon books have been written about the seven wonders of the world, while there are seventy times seven of natural wonders in every country of any great extent. Man's handiwork, however elaborate, sinks into insignificance when compared with what we may see in any part of the world. Vast caves, mighty rivers and lofty mountains vie with gorges, cataraets, plains and forests, in extorting admiration and awe, and a library might be filled with a description of the natural curiosities of a single state.

In Arizona, there is an area in which 35 hundred volcanoes may be counted. The majority are extinct, but hundreds are active, emitting smoke, hot water, mud and mineral substances.

From the sides of the hills, grouped in an immense amphitheater, come forth most beautiful springs of clear, warm water—some so sour, others so alkaline, that no living being or animal can drink it. These waters course down the hillsides, laying a coat of white, pink, purple, blue or green, made by the mineral salts they contain, upon everything with which they come in contact.

In the midst of these hills is the Lake of Ink. There run into it scores of streams of clear, mineral, hot water; others that are warm, and two that are cold.

The lake, one-fourth of a mile in length and one-eighth in width, lies like a gem, set in these hills or these ancient volcanoes. The inklike water which fills the lake, comes up to within three or four inches of the level of its shores.

The temperature near the edge is about 110 degrees, gradually growing warmer as you get down in it, and, as you approach the center of the lake, on the surface it is 136 degrees, and at a depth of 250 feet it is 216 degrees.

Near the shore on the east, south and west sides the water is only four to six feet in depth for 20 feet or more into the lake, where the shelf breaks off perpendicularly, and there no bottom has ever been found.

To the touch, the water feels smooth and oily. The ashes and oil which cover the lake when its waters are quiet, are from one-half an inch to an inch thick. The water of the lake is jet black, though it does not color the skin of those who bathe in it.

Under a glass, the coloring matter seems to be a minute black substance, held in suspension by the water, which adheres to white cloth immersed in the lake. To the taste, the water is warm, salt and bitter. To the bathers, the sensation, on entering the water, is exhilarating to a wonderful degree.

Millions of bubbles, formed by escaping gases, keep the surface of the lake agitated at all times, till it rolls, boils and foams, as if ready to break over its banks and escape; and, again, only in myriads of sparkling globules, glittering in the sunlight. Whenever the volcanoes rage with anger, the lake follows, and the sight of its maddened waters is well worth seeing.

Life, All Right.

An English teacher in a Hoosier high school began her new freshman classes by asking them to write a short description of a house. The results came in and were distinctly flat. "They're as much like homes as the bare outlines drawn by an architect," she scolded. "Change your descriptions so that they will seem almost alive. Give them life; crowd them full of it."

The next day they were a little better. But still she was not satisfied. "Fill them with life," she exhorted and again ordered them rewritten.

The third day came and she began the recitation by calling on a small, loquacious, timid youngster. He arose and read his opening sentence: "The whole house was alive with roaches." The teacher led in the laughter that followed. He had filled his story with life right at the beginning, too.

Intestinal Trouble From Cheese.

Hydekema, in a Dutch medical journal, reports instances of gastro-enteritis affecting persons who had eaten certain cheeses. By exclusion he comes to the conclusion that the disturbances were the result of the contents of the vesicles on the udders getting into the milk, as the cows had foot-and-mouth disease at the time. None of the cheeses were factory-made. This same explanation fits also seven cases of acute gastro-enteritis with bloody vomit in two families from two to four hours after eating bottled buttermilk, although the existence of foot-and-mouth disease could not be affirmed.

"Well, at any rate, I told Miss Grubbin I couldn't live without her."
"Did she seem interested?"
"Mildly. For some reason or other, it suggested hunger strikes to her as a topic of conversation."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The lectures are free and everyone is welcome to attend. Come and bring your families and friends.

THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS, LOCK FOUR, PA.

The East Indians and North American Indians believe that feathers endow the wearer with qualities, whether virtues or vices, of the bird from which they are taken; and as the peacock is vain, arrogant, and greedy, its feathers are supposed to bring bad luck. The Hindus consider it good luck to own a peacock. In the Middle Ages, it was customary to serve the peacock at great banquets with much pomp and ceremony. Over his carcass, medieval knights swore one of their most solemn vows, the ladies being witness thereto. The principals do not appear to have known anything of the origin or meaning of the oath by the peacock, and there is no reason, therefore, for believing it to have been traditional and imported. Its incongruous combination with vows to God and the Virgin seems to show that it was a pagan oath. Christianized in outward form by the aspersions of holy words.

The Seven Seas in Italy.

The Seven seas (Septem Maria) are extensive lagoons of salt water in northern Italy, generally separated from the Adriatic by narrow strips of sand or embankments, partly natural and partly artificial, but having openings which admit the influx and efflux of the sea water, and serve as ports for communication with the mainland. The best known and the most extensive of these lagoons is that in which Venice is situated, which extends from Torcello in the north to Chioggia and Brondolo in the south, a distance of over forty miles. These lagoons formerly were much more extensive, and afforded a continuous means of internal navigation from Ravenna to Altinum, a few miles north of Torcello. That city, like Ravenna, originally stood in the midst of a lagoon.

Brazil's Opportunity.

Brazil, which is almost wholly in the tropics, has the opportunity to upset the belief that no people can reach the very highest civilization in a tropical climate. The latest census credits Brazil with 30,500,000 people, which makes it the second American country in point of population. Some modern men of science, most of them British, maintain that when means have been found to utilize the heat of the sun as mechanical energy the tropics will become centers of production and therefore of civilization. If that should be true, what country could match Brazil, with its great resources of minerals, timber and land, and its great navigable rivers?—Youth's Companion.

While driving through Yellowstone park we came to some muddy, clay-like ground. Father happened to see a small shack in from the road and decided to go over to see who lived there. When he was about half way across the field he noticed a slight movement in the ground. Going over he found a hole about six inches wide. Thinking it was an animal hole he got down on his knees to peer in. We saw a man come running from the hut, waving his arms excitedly. Father did not hear him because, as he said afterward, he heard a low growling in the hole. Then the "animal" came out. "It" jumped up five feet in the air. Father's animal was a mud geyser, and it covered him from head to feet with yellow mud. The man, when he reached father, pointed smilingly to a sign which read: "Geyser No. 127. Spouts every 85 minutes." We have never ceased to tease father about his animal.—Chicago Tribune.

Once Famous for Embroidery.

St. Gall, Switzerland, is the noted embroidery seat of modern days, and one of the most influential centers of Christian civilization in central Europe. The city owes its foundation to the Irish apostle Gallus, who in the year 614 founded a hermitage near the brook Steinach. In the resulting monastery of St. Gall the strict rules of the Irish church were enforced until 720, when those of St. Benedict were substituted by an abbot, Othmar. In 1061 the Abbot Norpert of St. Gall erected a convent on the Sitter river, the place taking the name of Abbatis Cella-Apenzell, and the abbots of St. Gall became the dominating influence of the land until the subsequently much impressed mountaineers resorted to force and succeeded in shaking off their yoke.

Very early in the history of garden vegetables, or "garden sass," these things were not looked on so much as food as things to give savor to food. It was not then understood that one could work and maintain his strength on such light stuff. But the olden people seemed to understand that fruits and vegetables were good medicine, and it is true today that garden truck, though much better known than formerly for its food value, is also well thought of for its medicinal properties. Tomatoes are said to be good for the liver, carrots for the complexion, spinach for many internal troubles, onions for the blood, and the value of fruits for keeping the system in good condition is universally believed.
